

A Study on Psychological Effects of Environmental Fragrances

¹Takashi Kawai, ²Akiko Hagiwara

¹ Global Information and Telecommunication Institute, Waseda University (Tokyo)

² School of Human Sciences, Waseda University (Saitama)

Two experiments to examine the environmental fragrances on the emotional states confirmed the following:

- (1) Environmental fragrances have psychological effects.
- (2) The effects continue in a constant time.
- (3) Favorable impression vary in the strength of the fragrance.
- (4) Psychological effects vary in the favorable impression.